The Almshouse has continued during the year under the care of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Chapin, who have performed their duties satisfactorily.

The number of inmates at the commencement of the year was seven (7) ; at the close, four. Some have come and gone during the year; two have died, and one permanently removed by friends. Of the four at close of the year, one (Mary Bird) has her board paid to the Town.

The average number of inmates gives 209 6-7 weeks for one person.

The cash payments for the year, less receipts and amounts paid for repairs, was \$757⁰²/₁₀₀, which makes the cost \$31⁶⁰/₁₀₀ per week for each inmate, against \$31⁵⁴/₁₀₀ last year; the gain in expense per inmate was made by there being so few inmates for a large part of the year. Taking cost of repairs with above, there was an expense of \$971 97, making a cost for each inmate per week of \$4 $\frac{63}{100}$. The repairs were badly needed, and no large amount of money need be expended for some years; consequently it would not be fair to figure them in cost of inmates all in one year.

The amount expended the past year for support of poor out of Almshouse not including the insane, was \$427 $\frac{43}{100}$. Included in this amount (427 $\frac{43}{100}$) are charged to other towns and the Commonwealth amounting to \$97 10, which has been or will be paid into the Town treasury, leaving a net amount of \$330 $\frac{33}{100}$ against \$369 $\frac{18}{100}$ last year; we have been again fortunate as regards outdoor poor, the only large bill coming from City of Boston, the party having a rightful claim on the town, dating back many years.

The cost of support of insane has been \$1,015 $\frac{20}{100}$; number of dependents six until late in the year, when we lost one by death. Five are now in the hospitals.

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE WALPOLE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Trustees of the Public Library respectfully submit the following report for the year ending Dec. 31, 1888:—

Again has our Board been called upon to mourn the loss of one of our active working members. The following resolutions were adopted Oct. 1st:—

Whereas, in view of the loss the Walpole Public Library has sustained by the death of our friend and associate, Mrs. Cordelia S. Gray, therefore be it resolved,

That in the absence of the careful, conscientious and efficient work performed by Mrs. Gray while connected with the Library, we recognize that a loss has been sustained best appreciated by those with whom she was associated.

In tribute to her memory and in testimony of our respect for and high esteem of her character and valuable services, this resolution is hereby inscribed on our records.

Early in the year the Trustees received the resignation of Miss Addie L. Pilsbury, who had served the town as Librarian so faithfully for many years, and deem ourselves fortunate in securing the services of Miss Louise W. Pray, who has filled the position to our entire satisfaction.

The East Walpole people have continued to pay for having the books carried to them once a week, and about 1,700 books were sent them during the year; an increase of about 500 over last year.

Our grateful acknowledgements are due to the following persons, from whom donations of books have been received during the year:—

Mr. T. Herbert Gray, A Memorial of Dr. Silas Emelyn Stone.

Mr. Wm. W. Goddard, Second Annual Report of the Hopdale Public Library.

Mr. Amos H. Binney, 30 volumes.

Also the editors of the Walpole Star, Norwood Advertiser, Dedham Transcript, and the Central Norfolk Democrat.

For the cost of maintaining the Library we refer you to the Treasurer's report. An increased appropriation will be needed for the ensuing year, for the purpose of printing new catalogues, as we are now entirely out, and there is a constant demand for them. We would therefore recommend that the town appropriate the sum of $700 for the use of the Public Library.

REPORT OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

To the Citizens of Walpole:—

After the March meeting your Committee organized by choosing Alton H. Kimball, Chairman, and Myron H. Piper, Secretary. On the resignation of Mr. Kimball from the Board, due to a change of residence, the vacancy thus caused was filled by the election of Herbert M. Plimpton, by joint vote of the Selectmen and School Committee, as provided by law. Since the term of office of a member thus appointed expires with the year in which he is chosen, you will be called upon to elect, in March, one member for two years, with the usual two members for three years each.

Chapter 431 of the Acts of the State Legislature of 1888 provides as follows:—

1. Any two or more towns the valuation of each of which does not exceed two million five hundred thousand dollars, and the aggregate number of schools in all of which is not more than fifty nor less than thirty, may, by vote of the several towns, unite for the purpose of the employment of a superintendent of schools under the provisions of this act.

2. When such a union has been effected, the school committees of the towns comprising the union shall form a joint committee, and for the purposes of this act said joint committee shall be held to be the agents of each town comprising the union. Said committee shall meet annually in joint convention in the month of April, at a day and place agreed upon by the chairman of the committees of the several towns comprising the union, and shall organize by the choice of a chairman and secretary. They shall choose, by ballot, a superintendent of schools; determine the relative amount of service to be performed by him in each town; fix his salary, and apportion the amount thereof to be paid by the several towns, and certify such amount to the treasurer of each town.

STATE AID FOR SUPERINTENDENTS.

3. Whenever the chairman and secretary of such joint committee shall certify to the state auditor, under oath, that a union has been effected as herein provided, that the towns, in addition to an amount equal to the average of the total sum paid by the several towns for schools during the three years next preceding, unitedly have raised by taxation and appropriated a sum not less than seven hundred and fifty dollars for the support of a superintendent of schools, and that under the provisions of this act a superintendent of schools has been employed for one year, a warrant shall be drawn upon the treasurer of the Commonwealth for the payment of one thousand dollars, one-half of which amount shall be paid for the salary of such superintendent, and the remaining one-half shall be apportioned and distributed on the basis of the average public school attendance of the towns forming such district for the year next preceding, which amount shall be paid for the salaries of teachers employed in the public schools within such district.

4. A sum not exceeding twelve thousand five hundred dollars shall be annually appropriated for the purposes of this act.

Since May 1st, 1888, the towns of Walpole and Bridgewater, each with a valuation less than two and a half millions of dollars, and together having more than thirty and less than fifty schools, have employed the same superintendent of schools at a salary exceeding the minimum prescribed by the above law.

On May 29, 1888, the above law went into effect, and money was appropriated to carry out its provisions. Both towns thereafter voted to unite "for the purpose of employing a superintendent of schools under the provisions of Chapter 431 of the Acts of 1888," and directed their school committees to take all steps necessary to obtain the benefit of said act.

On September 29th a joint meeting of the school committees of the two towns was held, and all action was taken which this law prescribes. There is some doubt about our ability to secure State aid for the time preceding April, 1889, since the act provides that the joint meeting of the two committees shall take place in April of each year. However, we are in a position to take advantage of the promised benefits for the year following; and since the legislature which passed the law in May appropriated money to carry it into immediate effect, it would seem that it was not intended to make the date of the joint meeting (April) a vital condition for the year 1888, at least.

It will be seen from the financial report that no appropriation has been overdrawn. In repairs, the sum needed was lessened by the action of the town in remodeling the East school-house, a special appropriation being made. By close economy the expenditure for supplies was kept within the limit, though the rental of a piano for the High School took sixty dollars from the amount available for general supplies.

It may be of interest here to compare the expenditures for supplies during the last three years :

1886, Appropriation, $1,000.	Expenditures, $908.58.
1887, " 600.	" 595.90.
1888, " 550.	" 548.07.

For comparison with previous years, the last sum should be decreased by sixty dollars (rental of piano not included in other years), leaving $488.07.

For 1889, we would recommend that the following appropriations be made :

- I. Salaries of superintendent and teachers, fuel, care of school-houses, $8,000.
- II. Repairs, 250.
- III. Supplies and incidentals, 790.

It is estimated that $550 will be required for general supplies, the introduction of drawing into the schools necessitating an increased expenditure over that of the past year. And we think it wise to purchase the High School piano at this time, when the full amount of rent paid to date can be credited to the purchase money. The $240 required for this purpose, with the $550 mentioned above, make the $790 asked for.

We respectfully call your attention to the report of the Superintendent of Schools which is herewith transmitted.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

Gentlemen of the School Committee:—

The report of your Superintendent of Schools, for the year 1888, is herewith submitted. In preparing it, it has been my aim to place on record any important changes made during the year; to point out what seem our chief needs, and to give such other information as may interest the citizens of the town, that all may know something of the aim and spirit of our school work, even if unable to make themselves familiar with it by constant personal observation. Such a report as this, however, even if it accomplishes all it attempts, cannot remove the necessity for frequent inspection by all thoughtful and earnest citizens of the town, who are vitally interested that our schools should do their work wisely and efficiently; for only in a community where the home and the school are in closest relations of mutual helpfulness can the best results of a wise liberality in school expenditure be attained. We who do the school work of the town court the closest inspection of our work; and while we are fully aware that it is not as good as better workers could make it, nor as thorough as we ourselves can make it in the future, we do desire that it be seen by all, and receive the stimulus which always comes from the manifest interest of the thoughtful persons in a community.

During the past year nine hundred and ten visits to our schools have been recorded. A considerable number of these visits has been made by non-residents who have come to inspect our work. A much larger share has been due to the presence of parents and friends on public days by special invitation. But the every-day visits of citizens dropping in unexpectedly to see every-day work, and encouraging pupils and teachers by the display of genuine interest, is what we most need, and chiefly lack. My only excuse for dwelling upon this subject every year is its prime importance.

TEACHERS.

We have been fortunate in having but a small number of changes in our corps of teachers during the year. From the East

Grammar we lost by death a teacher who had given to the town two years of earnest, faithful work. Sickness caused the resignation of one teacher at the Centre, and from another room in the same building two teachers have gone to positions where more money was offered than we could afford to pay. This completes the list of changes, so far as the regular corps is concerned, though a change in at the South School has added a new name to those found on our list a year ago. That school has been steadily growing in numbers, until it now enrolls as many pupils as do the North and East schools each. Since the first of May it has been found necessary to give it an extra teacher, to make it as efficient as it should be. A division has been made into Grammar and Primary departments (as at the two other above-mentioned schools), but the added teacher has been made an assistant to the regular teacher before in charge, and works under her immediate direction. While such an arrangement undoubtedly adds to the cost of the school, that will be more than offset by the gain in efficiency; and nothing less was due that section of the town, if it was to enjoy the same advantages accorded to the other outlying communities. The West is now our only ungraded school, but the number of its pupils is such that one teacher can do excellent work there.

BUILDINGS.

One change only has been made during the year, but that has been so good a one, and the benefits sure to result from it are so many, that it calls for special mention. The East building, with its one fair room and one exceedingly bad, with its wood stoves and inadequate ventilation, has been transformed into an excellent building with two modern school-rooms, well equipped with all needed accessories, well heated, lighted and ventilated, and supplied with a cemented cellar, in which, apart from the furnace and fuel room, is adequate space for an indoor play-ground in inclement weather. The grounds, too, have been increased in size, and when put in proper condition will vie with those of the Centre School in the excellent provision made for out-of-door recreation. The people of the East district are to be congratulated.

lated on the change which has given them what was so much needed; and no citizen of the town but should take pride in a work of such importance.

It may seem to some that it is yet too soon to talk of further expenditure in this direction, and I have no desire to make too great haste even in good works. But I should fail in my duty did I not point out the fact that some such change as was necessary at the East is only one degree less imperatively demanded at the North, where the children of the primary department are housed in quarters which are exceedingly inadequate, and in which proper heating and ventilation are well-nigh impossible.

In this connection I must call your attention to the CENTRE SCHOOL.

This building, as I am informed, was designed to be heated in part, at least, by indirect radiation, i. e., fresh air taken from outside and warmed over steam coils, or by similar means, was to be introduced into each room by large pipes, and the foul air carried off by flues opening one from the corner of each room. This air so introduced was to be still further warmed, after reaching the rooms, by contact with steam pipes running along three sides of each. In the interest of decreased expenditures, (in the light of our experience since then it would hardly be termed true economy,) the feature of indirect radiation was dropped out, and reliance placed upon steam pipes in the rooms as the sole means of heating. Unfortunately, not only was the supply of fresh warmed air thus sacrificed, but the flues for taking out bad air were left in such shape as to destroy in large measure their usefulness. Each of these two flues is triangular, has a chimney passing up along the middle of one side, and communicates with four rooms (two on each floor), by eight large registers. In the absence of adequate means for maintaining a steady upward draught through these flues, they work (when they work at all) in a most erratic way, now upward, now downward, and never in accordance with any law which I have been able to discover for the guidance of teachers in their use. I have experimented carefully in all the rooms and found that the conditions vary in different rooms, and in the same room with changes in the direction and force of the wind, now giving a fair upward draught, and on gusty days reversing it at the will of the wind. With four rooms thus connected by a common flue and that flue working in no constant manner, bad air from one room easily finds its way to others, and all the noises of one school-room find easy access to others thus directly connected with it.

Briefly, we have no means of getting an adequate supply of fresh air which shall be warmed before it enters these school-rooms. But fresh air must be introduced, if not warm, then cold; and as this cold air can only come in through the flues (which ought to work the other way if they are to fulfil their mission of removing vitiated air,) or the windows, we have been forced to open windows. Teachers are instructed to completely change the air of rooms at recess and after each session; to provide for a constant inflow of fresh air during a session without creating a draught to blow upon pupils; and on such windy days as make this impossible, to open the windows for perhaps a minute or two, giving children meanwhile vigorous physical exercise for five or six minutes to guard them from all dangers during the time the windows are open and while the air is being warmed after the windows have been shut. Where this has been done with never-failing good judgment, many of the ill effects of bad air have been avoided without improper exposure of the children. But, with the best of intentions and an earnest desire to do all their duty, teachers in the midst of other work are liable to do this less regularly and carefully than they ought, and when the consequences are experienced in the form of colds contracted by pupils, and complaints sent in by parents, they are strongly tempted to guard against both by letting their children suffer the ill effects of bad air in the school-room.

One thing deserves to be noticed here. Many colds contracted by school children are due to carelessness in going out from the rooms without proper wraps more than to exposure in the rooms. In the coldest weather I see children going to the out-buildings without their out-door wraps. Teachers should insist that this should cease, and enforce their commands strictly.

I have dwelt upon this subject because it has seemed most fitting that our citizens should clearly understand the conditions under which we labor. More complaints relating to this matter have reached me during the year than from all other causes combined. If the town is not in a position to make needed changes at present, we shall strive to make the best of present conditions until such time as action can be taken. Meantime I trust that all cases which seem to show faulty management by school authorities will be reported directly to the Superintendent.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Last year the work of this school was dwelt upon at considerable length, proposed changes were outlined, and its double course of study presented. Its work for the year has followed the lines then indicated, the transition from the old to the new courses has been going on successfully, and it is now expected that in September next all the classes of the school will be conforming to the new order of things. The teachers of this school deserve credit for their skilful performance of a difficult and somewhat complicated task.

The work of increasing the reference library of the school and providing the needed equipment for good science work has advanced steadily, and I hope to be able to announce ere long that our collections of common plants and minerals are adequate to our needs. It should be remembered that what we have has been acquired in the last year and a half, and I think the showing is a creditable one in view of the short time and the small expenditure of money.

In June six pupils were graduated from the school, the graduation exercises being held in the Town Hall on the evening of June 28. The programme will be found appended to this report. The graduates whose names appear upon it all received diplomas certifying their completion of the regular course, the English course not having been in operation long enough to furnish any graduates.

NO RECESS.

The plan of having no afternoon recess, in successful operation throughout the year at the Centre, was adopted for the East and South in the last term. Both these schools, like the Centre, now have a noon intermission of an hour and a half, which allows pupils who dine or lunch at home at that time to do so without unreasonable hurry. At the North and West, where most pupils living at a distance bring lunches, the old conditions are still maintained.

PUPIL TEACHERS.

The two young women from our High School who entered the Centre building in this capacity in September, 1887, served continuously until called to the South as assistants in the spring of 1888, one succeeding the other, who was offered a position elsewhere. Still another came to us in October, 1888, and still remains. Last year I called the notice of High School graduates to this partial means of training offered, and if any are thinking of the matter now I would invite their attention to what was then said, and request them to make known their intention at an early date.

ATTENDANCE.

The table of statistics, giving the facts of attendance, etc., for 1888, will be found in its usual place. It calls for but few comments. For convenience of comparison, the totals for 1887 are placed below those of the last year. It will be seen that while the average membership has increased but sixteen, the average attendance is larger by twenty-one, and the per cent. of attendance has risen from ninety to ninety-two. There has been a gratifying decrease of two hundred and fifty-seven in the number of tardinesses, giving a decrease in the ratio of tardiness to average daily attendance from three and forty-eight hundredths to two and fifty-six hundredths. But one room has fallen behind its last year's record. The West School has made the largest relative gain, closely followed by Centre C Primary. The total gain is very commendable, and I trust that active work by teachers and thoughtful co-operation by parents will cause this good work to go on until all avoidable tardiness has been cut off. When that point is reached our record will prove a pleasing contrast to what it has been in the past, to what it is now.

Of truancy we have only occasional cases, and I think no confirmed truants. Causes of absence are uniformly ascertained by teachers, and all doubtful cases carefully investigated. The relatively large number of cases in 1887 came from the Centre School, over some of whose pupils a circus which pitched its tents close at hand exercised too strong a fascination. Mercifully spared a repetition of that experience, the truancy there has shrunk to its normal proportions.

COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE.

We have still some parents who need to learn that the law requires a yearly attendance of at least twenty weeks by every child between eight and fourteen years of age, and imposes a fine on parents who fail to conform to its reasonable and wise demand. Unfortunately for the prejudice against vaccination held by some, another law provides that no child who has not been properly vaccinated shall be received or retained in any school. The failures to conform to both laws (they will be found in full in my report for 1887) are not numerous, but full obedience should be exacted. In accordance with your desire, I have taken active measures to enforce the laws; some cases have already been corrected, and the few which remain have received proper notice and will be subjects for your prompt action, when, as will be the case in a short time unless parents act meantime, the offence is completed by the detention of children from school beyond the time allowed by the law.

EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN.

Since the publication of last year's report, the law upon this subject has been radically changed. In brief, the present law orbiis:

1. For children under thirteen years of age,
 - a. employment at any time in any factory, workshop, or mercantile establishment;
 - b. employment in any other indoor work for wages, during the hours when the public schools are in session;
 - c. employment during school hours in any manner unless the child has attended school twenty weeks in the year preceding such employment.

2. For children under fourteen years of age,
 - a. employment in any manner before 6 A.M. or after 7 P.M.

And it further declares that every person who employs children over thirteen and under sixteen years of age,

1. in any factory, workshop, or mercantile establishment (except during vacation);
2. in any other indoor work for wages (during the hours when public schools are session), must keep on file a list of such children so employed, with the prescribed Employment Ticket and Certificate of each.

The blank forms for the above documents are here given.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

WALPOLE, 18.....

The law requires that before any child receives a certificate he must secure an employment ticket properly filled out by his prospective employer. With this ticket, and his father to swear to required facts, (when the father is not a resident of the town the mother or legal guardian must act in his place,) the child presents himself to the Superintendent, who is empowered to administer the necessary oath and give the required certificate. This certificate, with the ticket, must be kept on file by the employer.

Since twenty weeks' attendance each year is not required of children over fourteen, the paragraph in their certificates relating to attendance is stricken out before being signed by the Superintendent, and their certificates never expire. But no certificate can be given to any child, fourteen or more years old, who has not attended school twenty weeks since his thirteenth birthday, if he has been a resident of the town since that time.

It will be seen that the law is framed not only to raise the limit of age under which children may be employed, but to close all the loop-holes for escape from its provisions, which rendered the old law ineffectual in many cases.

This law went into effect July 1, 1888. In September, an abstract of its provisions, and blank employment tickets, were furnished all the known employers of child labor. In two cases only have violations of the law been discovered, one employer stating to the inspector that no children under sixteen were employed, though two were afterwards found there, and another neglecting to have an employee who proved entitled to a certificate procure one. In both cases the law is now conformed to, and it will not, I think, be found burdensome to those who take the little trouble necessary to conform to its requirements.

* * * * *

For more than two years now, under the present management, we have steadily pursued the policy of doing a few things until we could do them well, declining to attempt a wider range of work until success in present work should justify a reasonable hope that we could enlarge our field without lessening our efficiency. During this time there has been a steady growth in power by our teachers, who have labored earnestly to raise the standard of their work. In reading, writing, arithmetic, and all forms of language work, our methods and results have steadily improved:

geography and history have been lifted out of the one-book rut and are now taught in accordance with an intelligent topical plan, in a manner to secure valuable and lasting results. And the time has now come, I think, when we may safely enlarge the scope of our work, with confidence in our power to do justice to both the old and the new.

Two subjects have for some time stood ready to be grafted upon our course of study, the merits of which, as means of training, few intelligent persons will question. Both are successfully taught in the best modern schools, and both have justified the confidence of those who have labored to secure their introduction. These subjects are drawing and music. If our teachers were proficient in both branches, and if we could command the services of special instructors to lay out the work and superintend the efforts of our regular teachers — and these are the conditions under which the best results are achieved in the larger and wealthier towns and cities — it would be wise for us to introduce both into our schools without delay. But the majority of our teachers are not so trained, and we have no means of securing specialists for the work. It therefore seems the part of wisdom to make haste very slowly, undertaking no more than we can reasonably hope to perform. We must therefore make a choice; and while both these branches are of great importance, I have no hesitation in saying that drawing should receive our preference at this time. Music must await its turn, which will come in due season if our efforts to establish drawing are successful. Meantime it can properly receive attention only here and there, when the special knowledge of a teacher enables her to accomplish something without robbing her other work.

DRAWING.

With the approval of your Board, steps tending to the introduction of this study into our schools were taken before the summer vacation. The regular Thursday meetings were largely devoted to the study of form by teachers, with the two-fold object in view of gaining a knowledge of the work to be done and the method of doing it. This work was continued in the autumn, and much valuable instruction was given teachers by Mr. Bailey, agent of the State Board of Education, and special instructor in this department, who gave us a series of talks on drawing. Necessary models and supplies were procured, and the year ends with these in active use in all our schools. It is, of course, too early to talk of results achieved, but we propose to keep clearly in mind the true educational object of our work, and to let no desire for display turn us from it.

LANGUAGE.

An important part of our school work is the training of children in the right use of English, giving them the power to express their thoughts clearly in good language, oral and written. For many years it was held that an exhaustive study of technical grammar, begun in the early years and carried through the course, was the best means to secure the desired end. But experience has shown that after many years of such drill, pupils who could glibly recite the rules of the grammar and analyze complicated sentences with considerable success, were still extremely weak in the use of language, lacking the power to speak and write good English.

Modern language work concerns itself with the art of expression, and aims to secure a correct use of English by placing before the child correct models for his study and imitation, to ensure fluency by constant drill in speaking and writing. Where the work is well done, pupils show great proficiency in putting their thoughts into good oral or written English long before they are taught to recognize the parts of speech, as such, or give the technical rules for the use of particular forms in certain relations. The few rules that are needed are derived by the child himself from a multitude of examples, and are his own clear statements of what he has observed to be always true under certain conditions. The study of technical grammar, the science of language, is reserved for later school-life, when the child has acquired by practice a familiar acquaintance with, and the power to practically use, the mother tongue.

The following suggestive lines of work in language, prepared for a teachers' institute to which the teachers of Walpole were invited in November, will give some idea of what we are now doing in our schools, with a hint of the method employed. Each grade has its share of this work definitely marked out, that teachers may know just what is expected of them, and closely connect their work with what precedes and what follows it.

SPELLING.

How? 1. Teach orally the meaning of each new word. (Older pupils use dictionary.) 2. Require use of, in original oral sentences which clearly show meaning. 3. Have form learned by copying many times. 4. Have child write from teacher's dictation. 5. Require use of, in original written sentences.

What? 1. Special names: child's own; of town, school, teacher, days, months, seasons, etc. 2. New words from reading and other lessons (including proper names from geography and history). 3. Groups of words from speller, (e. g., materials used in cooking; parts of a carriage; common trees; etc.)

PUNCTUATION.

How? 1. Teacher and class discuss correct model; child copy same. 2. Child write original sentences with same punctuation. 3. Child write similar sentences from teacher's dictation.

What? Date. John has a dog. Are you going home? What a fine day it is! Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday are the first three days of the week. "How old is he?" asked the man. (Reverse.) John replied: "He is ten years old." (Reverse.) "Come to-morrow," said the man, "and I will give you work." Has the horse stopped, Mr. Brown? (Reverse.) Our teacher, Miss Smith, is always cheerful.

Also, use of hyphen to divide syllables at end of a line; period in abbreviations and Roman numerals; special punctuation of letters and business forms; note use of apostrophe in possessives and contractions.

DIFFERENT FORMS OF SAME WORD.

How? 1. Teacher provide model sentences; child copy same. 2. Child write similar sentences, using proper forms of given words. 3. Child fill blanks in given sentences with proper forms of given words.

What? 1. Models: John has one rabbit. I have two rabbits. Child use in similar sentences: cap, clock, slate, etc.—box, watch, prize, etc.—half, leaf, knife, etc.—ox, mouse, man, etc.—chimney, monkey, etc.—baby, pony, etc.—sheep, trout, cannon, etc.

2. Models: John owns the book. It is John's book. Men wear boots. The men's boots are heavy. Boys should have clean faces. The boys' faces are clean.

Child use similarly (both singular and plural): girl, horse, Henry, etc.—woman, mouse, goose, etc.

3. Models: I see him now. I saw him yesterday. I shall see him to-morrow. I have seen him.

Child use similarly most common verbs, irregular and regular.

4. Models: Sentences showing correct use of all forms of the verb to be, especially the following: John and Mary are at home. Neither John nor Mary is at school. Either John or Mary was sent. Which kind of apples is sweetest? Similar sentences showing correct use of the verb to have.

Child fill blanks in given sentences with proper forms chosen from given words.

5. Models: He is not here. He isn't here. Similar sentences for all common contractions. Child re-write given sentences (full form) using proper contractions. Reverse.

6. Models: Sentences using pronouns as subject, in predicate after intransitive verbs, as object of transitive verb or preposition; especially: John and I are good friends. He gave it to John and me. Whom did you see? To whom did you send it? The boy whom you saw is lame. The horse which you sold has just passed. (Distinguish between who, which, that.) Also possessive forms.

Child fill blanks in given sentences with words chosen from given list.

7. Models: John is tall. James is taller than John. Of the three Henry is tallest. Sentences showing use of more and most.

Child use in similar sentences, bright and dull; generous and selfish; good and bad; other opposites of each class.

Teach comparison of adverbs similarly. Distinguish between use of adjectives and adverbs.

HOMONYMS.

How? 1. Teach meaning, form and use (spelling) separately. 2. Child re-write model sentences, choosing correct word. 3. Child put two or more given homonyms into one original sentence.

What? Models: He (through, threw) the ball (through threw) the window. He (ate, eight) (ate, eight) apples. That is (to, too, two) far (too, two, to) run in (to, two, too) minutes. Teacher supply most common homonyms, as above.

In like manner teach pupils correct use of sit and set, lie and lay, etc.

DESCRIPTIONS.

1. Of simple actions performed by teacher or some pupil.
2. Of simple objects, observed and discussed (orally) by children and teacher.
3. Of pictures, with or without previous discussion.

STORIES.

1. Of child's own experience.
2. From picture.
3. From suggestive outline, sentence, or word.
4. Without such aids.

REPRODUCTIONS FROM MEMORY.

1. Story read by teacher or class.
2. Lessons in geography, history, etc. (with and without topics.)

POETRY.

1. Write from memory.
2. Change to prose.

LETTERS.

Special drill in heading, address (single and double), subscription, superscription.

Simple letters of friendship; acknowledging gifts; ordering goods; of invitation (informal and formal, with answer); of introduction; of recommendation; from interesting localities (child write as a traveler); describing historical events (child write as an actual observer).

BUSINESS FORMS.

Teach from printed forms: Bills for goods bought (1. Dr. 2. Dr. and Cr. items); milk-bills; for labor performed; for rent, etc. Receipts for money received on account; in full; for labor; for rent. Promissory notes. Bank checks. Order for goods.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Teach from newspaper clippings: Advertisement for articles lost or found; for situation; for help wanted. Answers to each.

* * * * *

Only a word more, in closing. No system of schools ever was or ever will be as good as its best friends could wish to see it. With the ideal in mind, we labor to make the actual as nearly like it as possible, but have to confess freely how far short of it we fall. Looking the facts squarely in the face, no clear-headed school-worker is ever in danger of becoming too self-satisfied, over-confident. That folly is left to the man or woman of small powers or low aims. On the other hand, we are not wise if we fail to put a just value on the real gains which we make, if we let the knowledge of our shortcomings discourage increased efforts for improvement.

The teachers of Walpole, looking back on their past work and comparing it with the present, have a right to feel a little proud of the progress made, ought to be encouraged by what has already been accomplished. But I greatly misjudge their good sense and their honest devotion to their calling, if they find in the gain they have made any reason for relaxing their exertions. On the contrary, I fully expect to see them take up the new year's work with even more energy and zeal than they have before shown, to find them constantly growing in a knowledge of their duties, and a belief in the dignity and responsibility of their calling. Recognizing the value of their past work and believing in their future, I bespeak for them the hearty sympathy and encouragement of your Board and the community.
